THE SUBSCRIBER,

HAVING divided that part of his Land in Town situated to the Westward of his house, into LOTS, will agree for and DISPOSE OF some of the said Lots any time after (not before) the 21st of this month. Most of the Lots have a front on two streets; are full six feet higher in situation, by a level, than the land in the middle of Broad-street; have a fine prospect; and good WATER in the whole extent of St. Philip's parish PREFERABLE to what may be had there. He hath framed a WHARF upon the river, to the Eastward, of about 240 feet in length from South to North, where any ship that can come over the Bar may lie and load, and where any of the produce of the province may be landed, without a moment's loss of time, at either high or low water; and hath begun to dig a DOCK, intended to be full 20 feet wide, and to have six feet water at high tide, contiguous to a LONG WHARF also intended to be made at the North side of his land, and which he makes no doubt of finishing this year; so that the purchasers of his Lots, may have their wood and other heavy articles conveyed to their doors, at as little expence as in any part of Charles-Town. He will dispose of no Lots, but to such persons as will promise to improve them within a year, or eighteen months at farthest, after the purchase; and such as do so, may have their timber, bricks, lime and other materials for building on said Lots, landed at either of his wharves, within the above-mentioned time, GRATIS. He takes this private method of disposing of his Lots, rather than by public sale, in order to avoid (if possible) being pestered with dram-shops, and other nusances, that may make the neighbourhood disagreeable.

The Plat of the said Lots may be seen at Mr. WILLIAM GIBBES's on the BAY, Mr. ANDREW RUTLEDGE's in BROAD-STREET, or with CHRISTOPHER GADSDEN.

LONDON, FEBRUARY 3.

IT is ſaid that inſtructions are coming up from ſeveral parts of North and South Wales to their repreſentatives.

FEBRUARY 4.

The repeated victories obtained over the French by the Corſicans, are by no means ſurprizing, as the former fight unwillingly to make Slaves, while the latter act with the moſt determined bravery, in order to remain Freemen.

Extract of a letter from Paris to a gentleman in London, dated December 23, 1768.

"You Engliſh conſider us French as enemies to liberty: You reproach us for endeavouring to reduce Corſica to our obedience, and ſay, that if we heard of a freeman on the other ſide of the globe, you ſuppoſe we ſhould haſten thither to make a ſlave of him. How eaſy it is for men to ſee the faults of others, while blind to their own! The Corſicans are not ſo remote from us as the Americans are from you;----they never enriched us by their labour or their commerce;--they never engaged in our wars, and fought as brothers, ſide by ſide, with us, and for us, bleeding in the ſame cauſe;-----they never loved and honoured us; they are not our children.-------But all this your American coloniſts have been, and are to you.

"Yet at this very moment, while you are abuſing us for attempting to reduce the Corſicans, you yourſelves are about to make ſlaves of a much greater number of thoſe Britiſh Americans; depriving them of their property, by the authority of your laws; taking away the right of giving their own Money; arbitrarily diſſolving their parliaments, and dragooning their citizens. In ſhort, you appear to have no idea of liberty, or real deſire to ſee it flouriſh and increaſe: All the liberty you ſeem to value, is the liberty of abuſing your ſuperiors, and tyrannizing over thoſe below you."

It is now reported, that next Wedneſday is appointed, in the Court of King's Bench, Guildhall, for hearing the complaint in a certain cauſe. It is now imagined that no ſtep reſpecting a diſqualification will be taken till after Mr. Wilkes ſhall be rechoſen for Middleſex.

We are informed that a great number of the freeholders of the county of Middleſex, gentlemen of independent fortunes, are come to a reſolution of ſubſcribing 300 l. each, for the ſupport of Mr. Wilkes in his election, and to enable him to go through his other proſecutions.

A great patriot, it is ſaid, will repair to Holland ſo ſoon as he is ſet at liberty; and from thence open a ſcene, relative to the Britiſh cabinet, which will aſtoniſh all Europe.

We are now told, as a precedent in regard to the queſtion of expulſion, that Mr. Woolaſton was expelled, re-elected, and ſat afterwards in the ſame Parliament, unmoleſted.

A Prince Lewis of Wolfenbuttle, brother to Prince Ferdinand, and of courſe brother-in-law to the King of Pruſſia, is Governor to the preſent Stadtholder of Holland, the public muſt not be ſurpriſed if that court takes the ſide of the court of Berlin, and its allies, who at preſent are at variance with the court of Great-Britain.

Extract of a letter from Corfu, dated January 9.

"What the moſt prudent people foreſaw has now happened, which is, that our diviſions prove our ruin, and our enemies take pains to encreaſe them. The traitors of the country now take off the maſk, and their example has drawn off others, for, beſides the relations of Maſſei, les Peres, Fabianni, and Durazzo, the family of Aleſſandrini have gone over to the enemy, though our General has loaded them with favours. Capiaſſi has likewiſe joined them; nevertheleſs their treachery has not ſucceeded, being beaten wherever they appear. But we are made ſome amends by the acquiſition of Count Gentili, who has abandoned the enemy, and joined us out of pure love for his country. We have juſt received advice that our people have made themſelves maſters of Oletta, after an obſtinate engagement, and made the French garriſon priſoners of war, beſides taking a great quantity of all ſorts of ammunition there. Our General flatters himſelf, that we ſhall be maſters of San Fiorenzo too, before it can be relieved."

The houſe of Commons ſat from twelve o'clock on Thurſday noon, till four o'clock yeſterday morning, met again about noon and ſat late.

Mr. Wilkes's behaviour on a ſolemn occaſion, was acknowledged, even by his opponents, to be firm, manly, decent, reverend; but not crouching.

This day his Majeſty is expected to go to the houſe of Peers, and give the royal aſſent to the following bill, viz.

The bill to continue and amend an act for the free importation of Iriſh ſalted proviſions for a further limited time, and alſo from the American colonies.

FEBRUARY 6.

Saturday morning at three o'clock, a celebrated patriot loſt his ſeat by a majority of about 82; but we do not hear that he is yet diſqualified.

The only points now remaining to make matters deciſive againſt a certain popular gentleman, relate to a diſqualification, which we hear are to be determined one day this week.

A new writ is iſſued for a member for Middleſex, in the room of John Wilkes, Eſq;

Mr. Wilkes will offer his ſervices again to the county of Middleſex.

The friends of a certain popular gentleman have already begun to canvaſs for him againſt a new election for the county of Middleſex.

We hear that on Saturday morning a great lawyer had the honour of a conference with his Majeſty.

A celebrated Doctor of Law was in the minority on Thurſday night laſt.

Their Royal Highneſſes the Dukes of Glouceſter and Cumberland, attended at the houſe of Commons in the gallery, till two o'clock on Thurſday morning laſt, in order to hear the debates.

FEBRUARY 7.

It is ſaid, that a certain popular gentleman has lately received ſeveral letters from Boſton, inviting him in the moſt cordial manner to ſettle in North-America, where his character is held in the higheſt eſtimation.

FEBRUARY 8.

A celebrated gentleman expreſſed his deſire of being heard after a certain reſolution ſhould be agreed to; but was given to underſtand, that ſuch indulgence could not be permitted him.

From the Weſt end of the town we hear, that diſpatches were ſent off laſt Saturday to a certain Northern nobleman, now on his travels in Italy; in conſequence of which he is expected home about the middle of next week.

Extract of a letter from Rome, January 7, 1769.

"This day Lord ------, under the name of Steuart, with his ſon and two other gentlemen, arrived here: he was met by four of his countrymen, who belong to the Pretender's court, and who had been ſent there to attend his arrival."

The commanding ſea officers, for relieving thoſe abroad, and whoſe triennial appointments will expire this ſpring, are now finally ſtiled. Captain Robert Man is to go Commodore to Antigua, and the Leeward iſlands; Captain Proby, Commodore to the Mediterranean; the Honourable Captain Byron will go out Commodore and Governor of Newfoundland; and Captain Forreſt, as Commodore at Jamaica and the Windward iſlands.

The ſhips of war, allotted for the above officers, to hoiſt their broad pendants on board of, and in which they are to proceed to their reſpective commands, are the Warwick, of 50 guns, Commodore Man; the Panther, of 60, Commodore Proby; the Antelope, of 50, Commodore Byron; and the Dunkirk, of 60, Commodore Forreſt.

Copy of Mr. WILKES's ADDRESS, as it was diſtributed in Hand Bills, after loſing his Seat in the Houſe of Commons.

To the Gentlemen, Clergy, and Freeholders of the County of Middleſex.

GENTLEMEN,

"THE proceedings of yeſterday in the Houſe of Commons fill me with the deepeſt concern, and I can truly ſay, much more on your account than my own. I cannot be deprived of the glory of having been choſen a repreſentative in parliament for the firſt county in England; but I feel, with anguiſh of heart, that the preſent miniſtry have found means to ſuſpend for ſome time, the plan of uſefulneſs to my conſtituents, and ſervice to this kingdom, which I had meditated. What adds however, the moſt to my grief, is the melancholly reflection, that by my expulſion, the miniſtry have thus openly ſhewn that they entertain no ſcruple of violating the ſacred rights of the people, even in the moſt important caſe, that of having a deputy nominated by themſelves to the great council of the nation. They have in the inſtance of yeſterday, robbed a very reſpectable part of this kingdom of their nobleſt inheritance, of their ſhare in the legiſlative power. No ſet of men, in this country, have hitherto ventured ſo groſſly to abuſe the truſt repoſed in them, nor to give ſo fatal a ſtab to the vitals of our country. The threatening aſpect of all our public affairs does not preſent any thing equally alarming, except in the late inſtance of ruffians hired to be your aſſaſſins, and the murderers of the conſtitution at our laſt county election, whom public juſtice and an honeſt Engliſh jury, have hitherto in vain been ſentenced to death. I think with horror, on what we may in future dread for the liberties of all the commons of Great-Britain, from ſo deſpotic an adminiſtration, if our gracious ſovereign ſhould much longer continue to them the power of the ſtate.

"Permit me, gentlemen, to renew to you the aſſurances of inviolable attachment to your ſervice and the cauſe of liberty, to which my life is dedicated. My courage is not appalled, nor my ſpirit in the leaſt abated. I will carry with me to the grave, an unſhaken fidelity and ardent affection to you and the country, an invincible hatred and oppoſition to its enemies. I hope ſtill to give you further proofs of my ſentiments, by my parliamentary conduct. I flatter myſelf that the relation between us, which ſubſiſted yeſterday, although now diſſolved by the violence of arbitrary miniſters, will, in a ſhort time, again take place. Every mark of your regard I ſhall value in a high degree, and I truſt that my conduct will convince you, that I am not quite unworthy of the choice, which I have now the honour of humbly ſoliciting.

"I am ſtrongly influenced on this occaſion by a particular reaſon, which ſtrikes me very forcibly, and I believe will have the greateſt weight with you, it is, that by a ſecond choice of me for this county, you, gentlemen, the independent freeholders, will aſſert the clear right you derive from the conſtitution of naming your own repreſentatives. If miniſters can once uſurp the power of declaring who ſhall not be your repreſentative, the next ſtep is very eaſy, and will follow ſpeedily. It is that of telling you, whom you ſhall ſend to parliament, and then the boaſted conſtitution of England will be entirely torn up by the roots. The parliament of Great-Britain will become not only as inſignificant as thoſe of France, a mere ſtate-engine of government, but a grievous burthen and infinite miſchief to the nation. The preſent great criſis affords the opportunity of aſſerting your moſt valuable privileges, and of ſhewing yourſelves ſuperior to the inſolent mandates of a miniſter, who has the preſumption to treat Engliſhmen as ſlaves.

"The rights of this free kingdom, gentlemen, have been frequently violated in my perſon. You have now in me the opportunity of vindicating them, and I hope, without the reproach of vanity I may add, that my firmneſs in the ſupport of our common liberty, under circumſtances equally perillous and intricate, has ſecured me your confidence, and will be conſidered by you as a proof that you may again ſafely honour me with this freſh teſtimony of your eſteem, the chooſing me a ſecond time the repreſentative of my native county in parliament.

"I am, gentlemen, with true regard and gratitude,

"Your moſt obedient and affectionate humble ſervant,

King's-Bench Priſon, Feb. 4, 1769. JOHN WILKES."

EXTRACTS of LETTERS from LONDON, to Gentlemen in BOSTON and PHILADELPHIA: Taken from the late public Papers of thoſe Places.

Extract of a letter from a gentleman in London, dated Jan. 19.

"I had the pleaſure of dining, a few days ago, with Mr. Wilkes in the King's-bench priſon, in company with ſeveral gentlemen from America, and others from different parts of England. He is one of the moſt entertaining men in the world. I heard a number of ſentiments from him, that would have done honour to a SIDNEY or a HAMPDEN. He is an enthuſiaſt for AMERICAN Liberty; and ſays, if you can but preſerve an equality among one another you will always be free in ſpite of every thing. Titles are the bane of an infant country. He enquired in a particular manner after Mr. Dickinſon: His Farmer's Letters, he ſays, are ſuperior to any thing of the kind that was ever publiſhed in any age or country. He ſpoke with as much virulence as ever againſt Scotland, for you muſt know, all the Scotch members of Parliament, in both Houſes, are againſt America.

The following is an extract of a letter from London, dated January 28. "It gives me great concern to acquaint you the parliament have come to reſolutions of the moſt vindictive nature, with regard to the miſunderſtanding now ſubſiſting between us and America; and are determined to order over here, ſome of the moſt active men at Boſton, to anſwer a charge of the moſt dangerous tendency, and alſo to enforce the acts which are ſo diſagreeable to you, to the utmoſt; in conſequence of which, few or no goods will be ſhipped to North-America, except to your province [Pennſylvania.]

Extract of a Letter from London, dated January 30.

"The laſt duties it's confidently ſaid are to continue, and in ſhort you are to expect no favour or indulgence from hence. Inſtructions will be given to the governors, to ſend hither the moſt active perſons in defence of their rights, and if that ſhould be the caſe, I hope they will ſend ſhips ſufficient to bring every perſon on the continent, for I hold every native in that light."

Extract of a Letter from London, dated February 1.

"The Houſe of Commons have concurred with the Houſe of Lords in ſundry reſolves, cenſuring the conduct of the Boſtonians, and in an addreſs, to have the authors of any treaſon that may have been committed at Boſton, brought over here for trial. And this ſeems all that will be done for America, till ſome freſh matter is furniſhed from thence."

Extract of a letter from a gentleman in London, dated Feb. 3. 1769.

"You will ſee that ſeveral diſagreeable reſolves have paſſed the houſes of parliament, and that a very extraordinary meaſure is adopted to depreſs the ſpirit of patriotiſm in America; but you may rely upon it, they will never venture to execute any thing of this nature: the miniſtry have now too much trouble at home to create more abroad. You muſt depend upon your own virtue, prudence, UNANIMITY, and OECONOMY in America for your deliverance."

Extract of a letter from a gentleman in London, dated Feb. 5.

"I wrote you the 2d of January by the packet, ſince which there has been various proceedings in the houſe of commons, relating to the reſolves of the houſe of lords, which were thoroughly canvaſſed by a committee of the whole houſe, and in the concluſion were paſſed with very ſmall alterations. Your friends exerted themſelves in your favour with a torrent of eloquence and ſubſtantial reaſoning, which nothing but numbers could overcome. However, when the report is made to the houſe it will be again argued by your friends, with a perſevering ſtedfaſtneſs, although it is believed the miniſtry do not intend to put them in execution. We have all the beſt ſpeakers in the houſe on our ſide the queſtion who are true friends to liberty.---The merchants here have had a meeting, and appointed a committee to apply to parliament for a repeal of the late acts, they have conſulted our friends, to know whether they have thought ſuch an application expedient and likely to be ſucceſsful----They were of opinion, that juſt at this juncture, it would not be adviſeable to preſent a petition of ſuch a nature, and in purſuance of that advice, the committee are waiting for a more favourable moment."

Another letter from good authority, to a gentleman of note in a neighbouring colony, mentions,

"That the Revenue-Acts would not be repealed, 'till every aſſembly on the continent, had voted a full ſubmiſſion to the ſupreme authority of Parliament, and that to induce them to adopt a dutiful behaviour, juſt, yet ſevere meaſures would be taken with a neighbouring colony."

Extract of a Letter from London, dated February 7.

"Things draw towards a criſis; the miniſtry blamed by all moderate men-----The minority increaſing faſt-----The city of London meet this week to give inſtructions to their members---Many other counties probably will follow the example, and I hope moderate and conſtitutional meaſures will prevail, probably not without ſome further ſtruggles. The proceedings relating to America will be taken notice of."

Another letter from London, dated Feb. 7, ſays, "The grand committee was to have reported on American affairs laſt Friday, but Wilkes had taken up ſo much of their time, the houſe ſitting four nights ſucceſſively, 'till three in the morning, that they were obliged to poſtpone it to another week. He is expelled, but ſets up, and will be choſen again, if the houſe does not firſt diſqualify him by an act.

Other letters from London mention, "That in conſequence of the papers relative to America, and the Lords reſolves, laid before the houſe of Commons, the American affairs had been taken into conſideration by a committee of the whole houſe, and that the following report had been agreed to, and preſented to the houſe, but they had been obliged to delay conſidering of it for a few days, on account of Mr. Wilkes affair, and other intereſting buſineſs."

The following is ſaid to be the ſubſtance of the reſolves of the houſe of Commons.

That the laws of trade and revenue acts ſhould be fully enforced.

That the CHARTER of the M*'s B*y ſhould be altered, being incompatible with monarchy.

That no perſon ſhould be qualified to ſit as a repreſentative in the houſe of Aſſembly, till he had ſubſcribed a declaration, acknowledging, in the fulleſt manner, the ſupremacy of Parliament, and their right of taxation over the colonies, and that the diſputing and denying that right, ſhould be penal or puniſhible as high treaſon.

That his Majeſty ſhould be humbly petitioned to direct, that the perſons who have been moſt active in raiſing and promoting the late diſturbances in the province of M*'s B*y, be ſent for, in order to be tried under the Statute, and brought to condign puniſhment.

CONTINUATION of the JOURNAL or OCCURRENCES in BOSTON.

BOSTON, FEBRUARY 16.

LETTERS from Georgia, dated the 18th December last, give us to understand; that the assembly of that province, have fully harmonised with the assemblies of their sister colonies, by asserting their constitutional rights in a number of spirited resolves, and in petitioning their gracious Sovereign for a redress of American grievances, as also in the respectful notice they have taken of the Virginia and Massachusetts circular letters. The patriotic conduct of this assembly, does them the more honour, as their governor has been pleased to tell the world, that more than ordinary pains had been taken to prevent their receiving and shewing countenance and support to the Boston Lettr, and that notwithstanding this, they had suffered themselves to be influenced by the conduct of other provinces, and deliberately laid him under the necessity of dissolving the assembly; those members who have thus dared to maintain the constitutional rights of their constituents, tho' threatened with political death, by the mandate of a M----------r, have justly merited the grateful acknowledgments of every American; and that their names should live for ever, in the annals of their country.------Governor Wright's speech upon this occasion may lead us to imagine, that he would not have L----d H---ls---gh conclude that governor Bernard is the only governor upon the continent, who could reason with propriety, upon the justice and policy of American measures, but the good gentleman ought to be borne with, as his speech is quite dispassionate, and does not, like some others, discover the basest ingratitude and the most inveterate enmity against the people of his government, or that he was vain enough to fancy himself capable of forming the measures of administration.

February 11. The summoning of witnesses, respecting the libels against Mr. Hancock still continues. A clerk of that gentleman, was this day brought to judge Auchmuty's chamber, and closely examined; when this trial will end we know not; as long as it continues, we shall notice their procedure, that the friends of Liberty, on the other side of the water, may be able to form some idea of an American court of admiralty.

February 12. The prevalency of vice and profaneness, the robberies, thieving, house-breaking, &c. which have been committed since a certain set of men were sent among us, as we have been told by L----d H----l---------gh, to assist the civil magistrate, must greatly affect every member of the community, who views those licentious proceedings, either in a moral or political light: The faithful magistrate at such a day, has it in his power to testify his regard to the honour of the supreme lawgiver, and his love to his country, in his endeavours to discountenance and suppress them: Those who have exerted themselves herein, have justly merited the applause, and esteem, of the wise and virtuous; and when any one instance comes to our knowledge of Mr. Justice Mutray, and the other late appointed justices, having acted up to the true character of reforming magistrates; we shall with pleasure record the same in this journal.

February 13. We have had more of winter since February set in, than in all the preceding months; the ice having opened new passages out of town for the soldiery, desertions are more numerous than ever; notwithstanding all the care of the officers, and vigilance of the military guards, which almost surround the town; the practice of sending out serjeants parties in disguise, still continues, but we do not hear of any one deserter being brought back, excepting poor Ames, whose execution is thought to have been as impolitick as it was illegal; it deters those country people from making discoveries, which the prospect of a reward might tempt them to do, as they now apprehend, that this cannot be done without involving themselves in the guilt of blood---We wish those statesmen, on the other side of the water, who were in the measures of sending troops, could but look into Boston, and see the present state of the regiments quartered among us; if all upon the British and Irish establishment were now in America, and were no fuller than the former, it has been conjectured, that the number of British troops would not, in such case, exceed twenty thousand effective men. What policy must have been adopted by the British m-------y? The sure hold, Britons once had of Americans, by having their affections, has been wantonly thrown away, for the precarious one, which a body of troops can only obtain; a few regiments placed in Boston neither of which can be trusted without the walls, lest the greater part should disappear, or kept together within them, even by a discipline hitherto exercised only in an enemy's country, is the goodly power which has been thought sufficient to keep a whole continent in subjection. It was certainly a shrewd conjecture made by one in the House of C-----m-----ns, upon the first news of the troops being peaceably landed in Boston, that we should now be better acquainted with ourselves, and with them.

February 14. In the papers brought us by the last post, we have seen with pleasure, the petition of the Pennsylvania Assembly, to his Majesty and both Houses of Parliament, in which that Assembly fully concur, with those of the other colonies in asserting with great decency and loyalty, and a manly firmness, the natural and constitutional rights of Americans, not to be taxed, but by a representation of their own; a right, essential to a British subject, and inseparable from the idea of a free government. It is now evident beyond a doubt, that one sentiment upon the grand point, runs through all the colonies, not excepting the infant settlement of Georgia, which tho' it must be supposed under particular discouragements from asserting this right, has yet dared to do it.

This union is the safety of the colonies, and a pleasing omen in favour of the great American cause, which patience and persevering firmness, must at length bring to an happy issue, both to the parent country and the colonies. It is certain that the right of taxation is the cause of the present controversy between them; and the colonies not conceding this right to the British Parliament, is what has alarmed and offended administration: An union among the colonies in this point, is what they principally dreaded, and endeavoured to avoid----------Hence the impolitic dissolutions and prorogations of the colony assemblies, adopted rather to confirm than change the sentiments of the people; the liberal spirit of the Massachusetts assembly, and particularly the circular Letter, were considered as strongly leading to such a union---- The warm attachment of the citizens of Boston to the rights of America, and the patriotic conduct of their representatives were looked upon as having no small influence upon the Assembly; this is the true source of that high displeasure, expressed by the secretary of state, for the American department; and by other leading men at home, against the Massachusetts Assembly, and particularly the town of Boston. Hence the misrepresentations, and aggravated accounts of disorders here, transmitted to administration, and too easily credited, to form a pretence for treating this town with particular severity, and for placing so large a body of troops in its very bowels; from an absurd opinion that if the spirit of liberty was once thoroughly quelled in this capital, it must not only be extinguished through the province, but in all the colonies. Vain imagination! One spirit animates all America; and both the justice and importance of the cause is so plain, that to quench this spirit, all the colonies must be absolutely destroyed. What has contributed to distinguish this province, is the residence of the commissioners among us, and the uncommon exertions of G. B. and his tools, in favour of power, and to promote the most disagreeable measures of administration; exertions that have however been so ill directed, that they have happily embarrassed rather than promoted the intended plan---- Being pushed first, and more violently than our neighbours, we were early and vigorous in the opposition, and do not therefore arrogate upon this account, any undue merit to ourselves----We rejoice to see the colonies in the great point of right, completely united. Severe measures towards any one or the whole, must tend to confirm the union. The tighter the cord of unconstitutional power is drawn round this bundle of arrows, the firmer it will be; and the hand that can forcibly break it, in such a cause must be strong enough to break the pillars of the British constitution, and overturn the whole nation.

February 15. The coasting vessel which we have before told had been seized by a guarda costa for having a barrel of wine in the run, which had not been cleared out; has been since libelled and condemned, at a court of admiralty, together with some New-England tobacco, which was found on board upon unloading her;----It is proper to observe, that the only pretence for stopping this vessel was the cask of wine, but the cause of the condemnation was the tobacco found on board; we must therefore leave it to the world to judge whether this, or like circumstances can justify the conduct of those captains of our guarda costas, who, upon most frivolous and slight pretences, shall take upon themselves to expose the owners and freighters of coasting vessels to charge and damage of having their vessels detained and unloaded, in order to search and rummage out a pretence for their condemnation.

February 16. A concert hall is again opened to all who have, or may commence subscribers to such musical entertainments. We are told proper concessions have been made Mr. Deblois, and that G--------- P--------y, has engaged that the offi----rs of his core, shall for the future behave with decency, and agreeable to the regulations of such assemblies.

February 17. There has been within these few days a great many severe whippings; among the number chastised, was one of the negro drummers, who received one hundred lashes, in part of one hundred and fifty, he was sentenced to receive at a court-martial;---it is said this fellow had ventured to beat time at a concert of music, given at the manufactory-house.

A court of admiralty held on the yesterday, when the witnesses brought by Mr. Hancock, relative to the libels, entered against him on account of the Madera vessel, were examined; the court then adjourned to Tuesday next.

February 18. One H---t lately T---d---e W----t----r, was sent for by the Comm--------rs and closely examined by them, in hopes of fishing out some matter which might support the libels against Mr. Hancock; it is said one B---t followed the said person from the C----m----rs chamber, and hinted to him, that if he would bring out any thing to purpose against Mr. Hancock, he might be again restored to his place, and otherwise find it to his advantage.
